[5.3] Women' application in underrepresented subjects [5.3.4] Women' application in underrepresented subjects

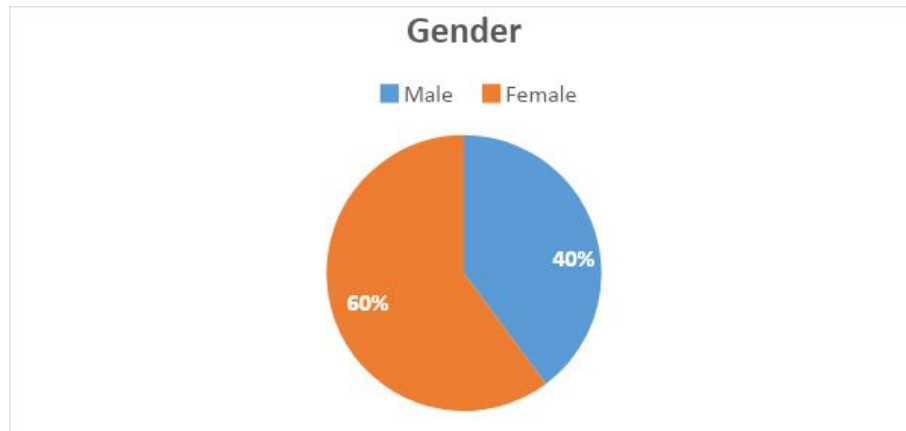

Description :

Universitas Indonesia (UI) has long paid attention to gender equality in the field of education. Female students can freely choose any study programs that they want to study. For example, UI encourages female students to participate in the faculty and student body which are usually dominated by male. In the certain study programs at the Faculty of Engineering, there is a proportional number of female and male students.

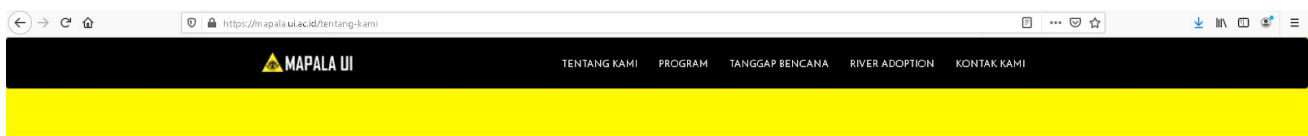

While, in the student club such as MAPALA UI, the current club leader is a woman. MAPALA is the abbreviation of Mahasiswa Pencinta Alam, whose members enjoy outdoor activities mostly for male (mountain climbing, jungle roaming, rock climbing, rafting, and paragliding).
