Description :

Universitas Indonesia has offered educational programmes/outreach for local or national communities on sustainable management of land for agriculture and tourism. Universitas Indonesia’s Community Service encourages the production of high-quality local Bandung coffee. This program can hopefully advocate young coffee farmers to produce high-quality coffee with a high selling point and to manage a well-packaged local coffee business. The program is the Vocational UI team’s effort on developing the creative economy. The Public Service Program is held on 29 – 30 April 2019 in one of the houses in the Cimenyan Village, Bandung. Buntis Community (Komunitas Buntis) is a group of coffee farmers registered with the Indonesian Minister of Justice and Human Rights. The group consists of 22 coffee farmers with their Arabica coffee product “Buntis Honey Process and Washed Process.”

Following the establishment of Ciletuh Palabuhanratu Geopark tourist area as the Global Geopark by UNESCO in the 204th session of the UNESCO Executive Board, Programme and External Relations Commission in Paris, France on 12 April 2018. It pushed the government of West Java to be more determined and focused on developing a tourist area with international standards. On Thursday, 9 August 2018, the tourist area management of Ciletuh Palabuhanratu UNESCO Global Geopark (CPUGG) held an important coordination meeting with geopark partners on mapping the problem-solving strategy based on the 13 recommendations from UNESCO.

On that occasion, Vocational UI offered six excellent work programs that are important for geoparks in the 2018-2020 tourism development period. First, the revitalization of the tourism area management to optimize the roles of each institution according to their functions and build synergy between each related institution. Second, developing human resources in tourism through certified training, such as hotel services, homestay management, and tour guides. Third, the development of tourism promotion and tourism awareness that involves all groups. Fourth, the development of the creative economy potential, which includes creating myths about Mandra Island, Kunti Island, etc., to gain tourists' interest. "However, the myths should have an official version made by competent people to avoid confusing the tourists," says Dede. Fifth, build awareness on natural disasters response in the form of socialization and education on risk mitigation. It is worth remembering that generally geopark tourism areas are located in disaster-prone areas. Lastly, the implementation of the health, safety and environment (HSE) aspects in the tourist area. It is important to note that recreation is the right of both abled and disabled people, including the elderly as well. According to Hermito, "At the moment, the attention on disabled-friendly tourist management in Indonesia is far from expectation. In fact, it is not getting serious attention. Moreover, most of the geopark areas have the characteristics of a special interest tourism object."
